

Language Learner Mission Statement

All students will be happy, healthy, and prepared to be full contributors and participants in the multilingual society of the 21st century.

Instructional services and language development programs for language learners and native English speakers adhere to state and federal requirements and are subject to Federal Program Monitoring (FPM) for evaluation and accountability.

Our Diverse Community

According to the Language Census in 2019, there are more than 50 languages represented in our population of 17,500 students, with English learners representing approximately 35% of the district. The top three primary languages spoken by our English learners are Arabic, Chaldean, and Spanish.

Home Language Survey

The Home Language Survey is used to determine if there is a language other than English spoken in the home. Accurate completion of the Home Language Survey at the time of student enrollment is critical to ensure a child receives the most beneficial services and supports.

If the Home Language Survey indicates there is another language besides English spoken at home the child is tested for English proficiency using the English Language Proficiency Assessments for California (ELPAC). Students who do not score Initially Fluent English Proficient (IFEP) on the Initial ELPAC are identified as English Learners and qualify for English learner programs and services.

Students are provided with explicit English language development (ELD) instruction and increased access to grade level curriculum. English language development (ELD), including integrated (whole group setting) and designated (small group setting) ELD is required for English learners until students are reclassified as fluent English proficient.

Developmental Bilingual Program

The developmental bilingual programs at Lexington and Johnson provide literacy and academic instruction in English and Spanish to students who speak Spanish as their native language. English learners achieve language proficiency in both languages and meet state academic achievement goals. The students in this elementary setting are provided an opportunity to continue their program and work for a Seal of Biliteracy in grades 6-8 at Greenfield Middle School.
